Yes, in a way that there will be particular habits and attitudes that you will need to completely detach from. This is pretty difficult, especially when these have been part of your system since you can remember. But this 'drastic' change does not have to happen overnight, cold turkey. One of the best ways to tweak and enrich your life is to stack habits, one or two at a time.

Habit stacking is not new at all to your system. Your current routines and rituals have become such because you have conditioned particular activities to be consistently done that you don't really need to plan them out. You just do them, because you have been used to doing them.

These are the spaces that new positive habits can fill in to improve your life. The good thing about stacking new habits is that you don't need much to begin - just a few minutes of your day and a positive resolve to commit yourself to improvement.
